Hubcap Clue Leads Police Investigator to Death Car Driver

Father of Six Remembers Striking Man

Description of Auto Also Aided in Hunt

A two-day investigation ended Monday night when an Omaha man, father of six children, told police he was the driver of the hit-and-run car that Saturday night killed Sylvester Bradford, 27, of 2634 Seward Street.

Dave Conrad, 30, of 5215 North Twenty-fourth Street, told Accident Investigator K. G. Miller that he had been drinking Saturday night but remembered the accident in front of 3615 Bedford Avenue.

Mr. Bradford, sideswiped as he was getting into his car, was carried 79 feet from the point of impact.

Investigator Miller said he found Conrad's car parked in the Conrad garage Monday night.

The investigator said he traced one of the car's hubcaps, found at its owner. His account:

An auto parts dealer identified the hubcap as being from a Kaiser model. Investigator Miller then questioned residents in the vicinity of the accident and found that they had seen such a vehicle driving east and west on Bedford Avenue frequently.

Another tip sent Investigator Miller to a bar where the car had been seen. The bartender, given the car's description, matched it with Conrad.

In all, Investigator Miller said, it took six hours to trace the hubcap to its owner.

"I began checking out hubcap clues at 3 p.m. and had traced them to Conrad by about nine o'clock," he said.

"If it hadn't been a Kaiser model it would have been much more difficult, he added.

Macmillan Has Profumo Report

By Reuters Agency, Ltd.
London—The Denning report—which some Britons speculate may be more torrid than the Kinsey report—was delivered Monday to Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

He was expected to start reading the secret 50-thousand-word document Monday night.

The report was handed over by its author, Lord Denning, the top judiciary official asked by Mr. Macmillan to investigate the Profumo sex-and-security scandal as well as "rumors affecting the honor and integrity of public life in this country."

College Trek in Full Swing

Dr. Krush, Daughter to Leave for East

College has been the basis for the travel plans of several families.

Dr. Thaddeus P. Krush and his daughter, Carol, will leave Wednesday by plane. Their ultimate destination will be Wellesley (Mass.) College, where Carol will be a senior.

Carol will stop in Cleveland, O., to visit her grandmother, Mrs. Paul Krush, while Dr. Krush makes stops in Warrenton, Va., and Hot Springs, Ark. Then the two will go on to Boston together.

Mrs. Krush, who'll remain in Omaha with the rest of the family, plans to spend Thanksgiving with Carol. Mrs. Krush is an alumna of Wellesley.

Another Wellesley student, Miss Karen Kozak, daughter of the John Kozaks, will leave this week for her sophomore year at the school.

Kovariks to Missouri

William Woods College in Fulton, Mo., was the destination of Dr. and Mrs. James Kovarik.

They accompanied their daughter, Kathy, to the school, where she will be a freshman.

En Route to Yale

Dennis W. Mack is visiting in Chicago on his way east for his junior year at Yale University, New Haven, Conn.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mack, will be weekend hosts to Mrs. George L. Roeter and Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Peterson, all of Chicago.

Officers to Convene

Presidents of 14 Junior Leagues will assemble in Omaha on Wednesday as guests of the Junior League of Omaha.

Mrs. John D. Ashford, regional director for the league and a former president of the Omaha group, will conduct the sessions.

The representatives will include Mrs. Alvin Berger, president of the Omaha league and Mrs. John Doyle, who heads the Lincoln group. Iowans will be Mmes. Forbes Olberg of Cedar Rapids, James Jones of Des Moines and John Holtze of Sioux City.

Shortbread Fine Frosted

Dainty Little Squares Ideal Tea Snacks

By Ella Elvin

A cozy suggestion for snacks is a frosted shortbread square that is a rich tidbit. It seems most appropriate cut very small or bite-sized and offered as a teatime dainty.

Frosted Shortbread Squares

1	cup butter or margarine
1	cup light brown sugar
2	teaspoons vanilla
2	cups sifted flour
1/2	teaspoon baking powder
1/8	teaspoon salt
1/2	cup finely chopped toasted almonds
1	package (12 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces

Frosting

1 1/2	cups sifted confectioners' sugar
3	tablespoons light corn syrup
2	tablespoons milk
1/4	teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2	tablespoons shortening

In a bowl cream the butter or margarine until light. Gradually blend in the brown sugar and vanilla.

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt and add to the creamed mixture, mixing well.

Add chopped, toasted almonds and all but one-fourth cup of the semi-sweet chocolate pieces (reserve these for glazing the frosting).

Spread in an ungreased baking pan (9 by 13 by 2 in.) and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, 30 minutes. Let cool in the pan.

Prepare the frosting by combining in a bowl the sifted confectioners' sugar, corn syrup, milk and vanilla. Spread over the baked and cooled shortbread.

In a custard cup over hot water melt the reserved chocolate bits with the teaspoon and a half of shortening.

Trickle fine lines of the chocolate mixture over the frosting about an inch apart, then "feather" the lines slightly in a crosswise direction with the tip of a knife.

Let frosting set completely before marking into one and one-half inch squares. Yields four dozen or more.

Makes six to eight servings.

Today's Menu— Spinach Goes in This Soup

Recipe Needs Herbs, Stock, Light Cream

A group of herb-growing cooks introduced us to this delightful soup years ago, and we've treasured the recipe ever since.

Dinner

Brooklyn Spinach Soup
Canadian bacon with Scrambled eggs
Tomato sauce with Green peas
Buttered hot rolls

Brooklyn Spinach Soup

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1/2 cup minced onion
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1/2 teaspoon minced garlic

1/4 teaspoon each dried thyme, basil and marjoram
cups chicken stock
1 pound spinach, cooked and pureed

1 cup light cream
Salt to taste

In a saucepan melt the butter; add onion and garlic; cook gently until onion is wilted and golden.

Add parsley, thyme, basil marjoram, chicken stock and spinach; simmer for about 10 minutes; add salt to taste.

Heat cream to the boiling point; pour into individual soup plates; pour spinach mixture over cream.
Serve at once.

Makes six to eight servings.

Austrian Finds Hospitality as Warm as the Depot Stove

The World-Herald's News Service.

Wayne, Neb.—The hospitality of a Sioux City, Ia., railroad ticket agent provided a warm introduction to the Midland for an Austrian on her way to Wayne State Teachers College.

Ulrike Engler of Salzkamergut had notified the college when she would arrive in Sioux City and Dean of Students Donald Merriman arranged for a dormitory counselor to meet her.

The Wayne man, Gary Henrich, was at the Sioux City Airport at the appointed time, but Miss Engler was not.

She had arrived by train. Mr. Henrich could not find her.

Milwaukee ticket agent Jerry Riley, a substitute that day, didn't leave her stranded.

He took Miss Engler to his home at Elk Point, S.D., for dinner and the Rileys later drove her to Wayne.

Miss Engler is a graduate student and will major in English.

Another European at Wayne, Suzanne Schytt of Denmark, also found excep-

Cell Therapy Recognized by Medics

North American Newspaper Alliance.

Montreux, Switzerland—Dr. Paul Niehans, one of the most controversial figures in medical history, has been summoned to Rome for consultations with Pope Paul.

Dr. Niehans, who developed the disputed "cellular therapy," is a member of the Papal Medical Academy. If the newly elected Pontiff should decide to seek treatment by the Swiss physician, it will be the second time in a decade that a Pope has made use of this "miracle cure" for tired bodies.

The late Pope Pius XII openly credited Dr. Niehans's treatment with the last four productive years of his life.

It is known that other world leaders and celebrities have also been treated, including West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, the Kings of Saudi Arabia and Morocco, Bernard Baruch, Lilian and Dorothy Gish, Gloria Swanson, Somerset Maugham, Noel Coward and Hedda Hopper.

Now, for the first time, his work is being recognized by the medical profession.

Fifteen leading European medical authorities have published an important work called "Cell Research and cells from the heart of an unborn lamb. If damage had been caused by radiation, such as X-ray, he used bone marrow cells from the unborn lamb, and each time the results were favorable.

Dr. Niehans came upon this method by accident in 1931 when he was called by a hospital to transplant a parathyroid gland in a woman after hers was injured in goiter surgery.

He extracted a parathyroid gland from an unborn lamb, but the woman was dying, and it is against the law in Switzerland to operate on a dying person.

Suddenly he was seized by an inspiration. Why not grind the parathyroid gland of the animal, add a salt solution and inject the fluid into the muscular tissues of the patient?

He risked the new technique. The woman revived and, following a period of rest, recovered to enjoy an active life until her death three years ago at 94.

Since that day, Dr. Niehans has administered 25 thousand injections without losing a single life. From that time, he has devoted all his waking hours to cellular therapy research.
